Dan - I'm not sure I totally understand your email. Why couldn't we add a statement (to the one in the boilerplate regarding farm supply stores, etc) that pest control professionals can obtain the rodenticide through pesticide distributors? According to Meredith, many PCOs do not receive product directly from companies; they buy it through a middleman like a distributor. Also, I think it doesn't make sense to have that agricultural language if the label doesn't have any ag use sites. What do you think?

Jennifer,

I was just going to tell you that I had finally read over John L's question about the text used in the RMD about where products were sold.

To me, the current text is fine. Mr. Lublinkhof seems to be creating a lot of unneeded confusion by whipping together:

- 1) types of stores of distribution (the intent of the RMD);
- 2) applicators (PCO's) [We considered putting "For PCO Use Only" on the label but OGC said not to because it was unenforceable. So we certainly will not go in that route.]
- 3) sites (commercial building) [For the 16 lb, 2nd generation, we are not restricting sites.]

Hi Dan,

No I'm not in today, my coughing was really bad this morning and was really hard to breathe, so I stayed home. Is there anything I can help you with?
